How is myelofibrosis diagnosed?

About 20% of patients have no symptoms at the time of diagnosis and myelofibrosis is discovered as a chance finding after a routine blood test. The most common symptoms are excessive tiredness or breathlessness because of anaemia or abdominal discomfort due to enlargement of the spleen. Sometimes patients report unexplained weight loss, or later stages of the disease bruising/bleeding may occur due to lack of platelets and repeated and persistent infections may become a problem due to lack of healthy white cells.

A man is shown in silhouette, standing in a doorway and looking out towards a brick building. The interior is dark, while the exterior is brightly lit. In the background, there are blue and green bins and some white pipes. The man is wearing a light-colored shirt and dark trousers. The text "It's shown us for what we are - selfish gits" is overlaid at the bottom of the image.

It's shown us for what we are - selfish gits

A person is shown from behind, standing in a dark room and looking out a window. The person is in silhouette, and the room is dimly lit, with light coming from the window. The window has yellow curtains. Outside the window, a building and some greenery are visible. The person is standing on a bed with a patterned blanket. To the right, there is a dark piece of furniture, possibly a TV stand or a desk.

Governments don't come down to our level, they tread on such as us.
We're the ones doing all the work, we're the cannon fodder.

I dread to think what it's going to be like. I'm 63 and doing volunteer work for my Universal Credit.
What's going to happen for my grandkids?

I want my husband to recover fully

I want to regain my health

I want to be useful

I want to lose weight

I want to be well

I want a job

I want to try my hand at freehand signwriting

I want to end racism

I want peace in the world
